

Personal Mission Statement

I am an active member of the team, contributing leadership, decision-making, honesty, empathy, and self-confidence. At the end of the day I know that I gave it my all, accomplishing the tasks I set forth because of my time management, work ethic and organizational skills. I seek to appear approachable and friendly for I control myself, which in turn controls how others see me. I strive to surround myself in a positive atmosphere full of kindness, understanding, respect, compassion, hope and laughter. I am a person who communicates effectively and efficiently, always asking never demanding.

I want to be someone who is trustworthy, someone who inspires and enlightens. I want to be a director who collaborates and engages both the actors and designers; an educator who places the students first, who learns from them and continually encourages them; a wife, daughter, sister, and aunt who places their support and love of family before anything else.

There are those in my life who have opened up the world to me; my goal is to return that guidance, hope, love, and passion to others. They are the reason why I seek to be creative for the possibilities are endless, working and living in a way that tests, entertains, and awakens the soul and mind; living a life of no regrets remembering to look at every opportunity, mistake, or challenge as a learning experience.
